ح

Handwriting practice lines with a grid and a red dot indicating the starting point for the letter 'y'.

ح

Handwritten practice lines on a grid background, showing the letter 'x' written multiple times.

Handwriting practice line with four red dots and a red arrow pointing to the right.

Handwriting practice area with a grid and four red dots for tracing or writing.

A handwriting practice grid consisting of a series of vertical lines and horizontal lines. There are four red dots placed on the grid, each centered between two horizontal lines. To the right of the dots is a cursive letter 'r' written in black ink, with a red dot at its top and a red arrow pointing to it.

Handwriting practice sheet for the Arabic letter 'Ha' (ح) in its connected form. The sheet is divided into four columns, each showing a different style of the letter. The first column shows the letter in its basic form. The second column shows the letter with a red dot above it, indicating the starting point for writing. The third column shows the letter with a red dot below it, indicating the starting point for writing. The fourth column shows the letter with a red dot to the right of it, indicating the starting point for writing. Each column contains four rows of the letter, with the first row being the largest and the subsequent rows decreasing in size. The letters are written in black ink on a grid background.
